Excellent Quality

AOTA Press publishes high-quality products that will be important to occupational therapists, occupational therapy assistants, other health professionals, and consumers. All proposals are peer reviewed by respected and knowledgeable occupational therapy professionals. Qualified editors carefully copy edit each chapter, making sure that the work is cohesive without damaging integrity or changing intent. Professional project managers, typesetters, proofreaders, designers, indexers, and printers make certain that your knowledge is presented in the best possible light, producing a product that is attractive, distinctive, and a good value.

"As an author, I found working with AOTA Press to be a very positive experience—they were efficient, detail-oriented, thorough, and supportive. And they marketed my book fabulously!"
Sharon A. Gutman, PhD, OTR/L, coauthor of Screening Adult Neurologic Populations: A Step-by-Step Instruction Manual

"I am very impressed and satisfied with the quality of AOTA's publishing. They significantly enhanced our writing, formatting, and style to a new level."
Alison B. Schonfeld, OTR/L, coauthor of Screening Adult Neurologic Populations: A Step-by-Step Instruction Manual

Personal Attention

At AOTA Press, a project editor will guide the development and production of your product and will work closely with you from the point the completed manuscript arrives to the time when the finished book or electronic file is delivered to readers. AOTA staff will supervise the copy editing, design, typesetting, proofreading, indexing, and all of the other production details necessary to produce a quality product. They know what stage the product is in at all times. They will guide you through the steps of completing peer review, clearing editing, obtaining permissions, reviewing page proofs, and so forth. In addition, senior staff will review all designs and read final pages of every product.

Quick Response

With many publishers, you can often expect to wait 18 months from finished manuscript to published product. At AOTA Press, we strive to get your well-researched and carefully organized information into readers' hands in less than 1 year. Development and production times vary with the size of the product, author schedule, complexity of typesetting, and other factors—but many AOTA Press products go from manuscript to printed or electronic product in less than 6 months.

Competitive Financial Arrangements

AOTA Press offers royalties and stipends competitive with other nonprofit and trade publishers. Standard AOTA Press royalty rates are as follows:

Copies Sold	% of Net Sales
1 to 1,500	12.0%
1,501 to 3,000	12.5%
3,001 to 4,500	13.0%
4,501+	13.5%

Royalties are paid immediately in the first fiscal year after your product has been completed and are never tied up in repayment of production costs such as indexing or routine permission fees.

Stipends, which are paid to both editors and authors, vary by product size and the amount of work and time required.

Positive Sales Results

Our professional marketing team gets involved in your book as soon as you return your marketing questionnaire. They write a customized plan for every product, targeting the occupational therapy audience in a way no one else can. As part of the American Occupational Therapy Association, AOTA Press has direct access to 35,000 members who need both general and specialized information in their daily work as well as to students and instructors who need textbooks.

Whether it is targeted brochures, advertisements, or press releases; cover testimonials; or flyers for your next lecture, you can be certain that your product will be marketed creatively and professionally. Through our relationships with distributors across North America, we now reach many potential new readers from around the world.

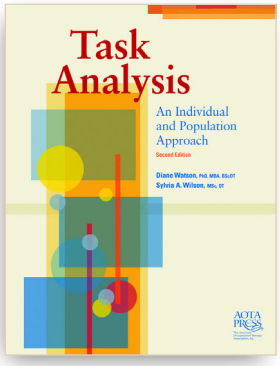
Advancement of the Profession

You advance occupational therapy when you publish with AOTA Press. Students, educators, and practitioners will benefit from the knowledge and expertise you communicate. In addition, proceeds from the sales of AOTA Press products help support other important professional programs, such as lobbying for fair reimbursement, developing standards for practice, and promoting public understanding of occupational therapy. Instead of supporting shareholders in a commercial venture, you can support your own profession when you publish with us.



"AOTA Press distinctly caters to the occupational therapy author. Creativity is meaningful to occupational therapists, and AOTA Press supported the 'art and science' that embodies the 'spirit' of the profession."

Sylvia A. Wilson, MSc, OT, coauthor of Task Analysis: An Individual and Population Approach, 2nd edition

Highly Respected Publishing Source

The American Occupational Therapy Association was founded in 1917 and began publishing in 1922, first offering journals and later books, standards, manuals, magazines, consumer guides, and electronic products. AOTA Press was created in 2002 to expand the association's long tradition of producing important information in a variety of formats for occupational therapy professionals and students and for other health professionals and consumers.
