Promote ALL that we do as occupational therapy practitioners to help people LIVE LIFE TO ITS FULLEST
Why promote OT?

AOTA Centennial Vision
"We envision that occupational therapy is a powerful, widely recognized, science-driven, and evidence-based profession with a globally connected and diverse workforce meeting society's occupational needs."
How can I take responsibility and help to promote OT?
HOW do I explain what OT is?

Describe what you do.
Children and Youth

“Today I coached a mother in helping her child play with a toy in a different way to strengthen new muscles. I focus on the whole family so they can support her development every day, not just when I’m there. I am an OT practitioner.”
Mental Health

“Today I led a cooking group for adults in a community mental health clinic. We practice working together towards a concrete goal and building healthy habits. This activity will help these adults work towards their goals of living independently. I am an OT practitioner.”
"Today I taught hip precautions to a client who had a total hip replacement. With this information he will be able to bathe and dress safely while continuing to heal properly. I am an OT practitioner."
“Today I ran an educational session on maintaining healthy backs in the workplace. This program educated workers on proper sitting and lifting techniques, and the prevention of injuries on the job. I am an OT practitioner.”
"Today I shared my research about health literacy with colleagues at a state conference. They will use this evidence to inform their practice and make sure all materials they distribute are easy to read and understand. I am an OT practitioner."
Work/Industry

"Today I measured and set up a home workstation for a woman who runs her own marketing company. She will now be able to run her business without neck and back pain. I am an OT practitioner."
“Today I discharged a college student who was working on increasing his range of motion and hand strength after a wrist fracture. Now he is able to hold a pen and take notes in class. I am an OT practitioner.”
We invite you to use the professional commitment worksheet with your colleagues to explore the importance of promoting occupational therapy.
